YOUR COMMENTS ON THE CASE

This is an area of outstanding natural countryside and woodland which caters for much wildlife, some of it rare in this part of the world. Uckfield is swamped with new developments and much natural habitat is being lost. This seems very much at odds with"saving the environment" and climate change. This is an important piece of land and must not be swallowed up in yet more urbanization with increased traffic flow and its pollution. I seem to recall that this area has had many applications in the past, all of which have been turned down for all the reasons stated above, so why has it reared its ugly head yet again?
